Rugby, Yesterday.

The grave financial crisis which has developed in Germany is being followed with deep concern here and to-day's events in Berlin caused an inevitable repercussion on the London Foreign Exchange market. . -

There was a severe depreciation of the German mark which, after slumping from 2.65 to 27 to £1, recovered in the afternoon. The German crisis had a weakening effect on the Stock Exchange generally and prices, after recovering from the early drop presented a weak appearance at the close.

The news was awaited anxiously throughout the day of the results of the Conference of Governors of the Bank of International Settlements at Basle.

The Story of the Spades. "Take the oft quoted incident of the Peruvian spades. #### "CITY STREETS."

Admirers of Gary Cooper's heman portrayals will find added interest in his latest starring picture for Paramount, "City Streets," the next attraction at the King's Theatre. The virile Westerner appears, for the first time in his three years of starring fame, dressed throughout the plefure in civilian clothes. Uniforms and range garb are gone for this picture, and Cooper is seen in the everyday costume of the city man.

But "City Streets" gives Cooper more than the chance to appear in civilian clothes. It gives him story of vibrant power, packed with punchful action, set in the littleknown haunts of the underworld racketeers. It gives him a deliciously enthralling leading lady as co-star, little Sylvia Sidney, and a splendid cast of supporting actors which includes Paul Lukas, William Boyd and Wynne Gibson.

Streets" is strong melodrama, centering around the romance of Cooper and Miss Sidney. Cooper, operator of a shooting gallery in a street carnival, falls in love with the girl, who is involved with the beer-running racketeers. The girl, dazzled by the easy money earned by her father and friends, urges Cooper to get in on it. He refuses. But, when the girl is framed and sent to prison for a murder of which she was innocent. The action of the umpire in giving the Somerset captain out should not have been given out as he did not hit the stumps with his bat in making the stroke.

Rule 25 says that a batsman is out "if in playing at the ball he hit down his wicket with his bat or any_part-of-his-person-or-dress. Does a splinter of the bat count as the bat for the purpose of this rule?

A batsman who has completed stroke and then overbalanced and fallen on his wicket has before now been given not out, and seems equally logical that a broken bat should be forgiven.

Owing to the style of stumps now being used, it is becoming quite common for a ball to hit the wicket, and for the bail to stay on although dislodged from the groove. It has been clearly laid down in such cases that the batsman is out, too, if the bail jumps up and fails back into place.

The punch to the point of the jaw was apparently not approved of in 1740, but it is a point of interest that the blow to the mark-which, under the name of solar-plexus punch, was supposed to have been invented by Robert Fitzsimmons when he defeated James J. Corbett-was frequently employed by Figg, Taylor, Smallwood, and others, writes Trevor

Broughton's rules took a long time to reach the north of England. In that part of the country fighting was of the "up-and-down" kind which meant that the gouging out of eyes, and purring-a kick with nailed boots-and blows below the belt were permissible. Deaths in the ring were frequent, and it was largely because of the dreadful brutality that Broughton produced his regulations. Later still he sent this advertisement to the Daily Adver-

"Mr. Broughton proposes, with proper assistance, to open an Academy in the Haymarket for the instruction of those who are willing to be initiated in the mystery of boxing, where the whole, theory and practice of the truly British art, with all the various stops, blows, cross-buttocks, etc., inlatter thereupon challenged Brough- cident to combatants, will be fully pelled the champion to accept. This is a spending age. Who away among our other impossiwill deny it?

the thrifty are no longer admired, as they should be, for their thrift, and lauded as an example | to the thriftless, but rather depised for their-caution and sometimes even pitied because, according to the spenders, they obtain so little pleasure out of

By pleasure is meant nightly visits to the cinema or the dance hall, and that of course, costs a good deal of money.

That is why, I suppose, nine people out of ten to-day never even think of trying to save penny, says Godfrey Winn in the Daily Mail. They know it would be useless. Instead, they spend all their income, and sometimes more, in a determined, though perhaps rather reckless, effort to have a good time, and to enjoy every moment of their leisure hours while they still possess the health and the desire and, most, important, the wherewithal to do so. Afterwards . . . . But they neither seem to think nor to care about afterwards. In their foolishly optimistic way they believe that the future will take care of itself.

"Have a good time to-day and to-morrow will never come.'

Mad Craze for Pleasure. This is the motto of my generation, and not only my generation, I am afraid, for all ages alike seem smitten with this mad craze for pleasure. We worship it, as though it were a god, and as an offering to that god we willingly sacrifice security; our peace of mind, and a stable, firm background.

Instead, we walk dangerously on shifting sands.

Once upon a time, and not so long ago either, every class of the community automatically put aside a portion of their incomea portion either large or small, according to their means and circumstances—saving it wisely, "year by year, ; against their old age or that period of bad luck or illness which is likely to come to any of us. But today, alas, this wise and sensible behaviour has been superseded by an era of universal spending, which in many cases borders dangerously close on wild extravagance.

The Truth.

There is no exaggeration in that statement. It is the truth. As I sit at my desk and write this article I look out on to a square which is used as a parking place for vehicles. It is overflowing_with_motor-cars-of-every size and description. Are al these cars paid for? I doubt it very much.

It is the fashion to-day for everyone rich and poor alike, to own a car, or if not a car, a motor bicycle, some means of transport which will enable them to career about the countryside at weekends or in holidays.

Once people were content to stay in the environs of their own home towns, but they are not so any longer. The cinema has made them restless and dissatisfied. The lure of the unknown excites them.

They are filled with a longing in is their home.

In a way that is quite an understandable longing. It lies long run if we do so - and, long as it is controlled and locked | secure in every way.

Holiday Resorts Faced with Severe Losses.

(Due Marseilles, Aug. 22.) Registration July 21, 11.45 a.m.

Letters ...... 6 p.m.

London, June 20. British holiday resorts are faced with severe losses as a result of the virtual absence hitherto of Summer weather.

It is estimated that since October Britain has had an aggregate of only about three weeks of really fine, warm weather, and only three reasonably good week-ends since the beginning of the Spring. The bad weather, is not confined to Britain, but is general-1 ly over Northern Europe. Insurance companies insuring against rain are having a bad year and have had to pay out substantial sums to country cricket clubs in respect of ruined matches and to organisers of agricultural shows, etc.

The ... International ... Tennis

Tournament in France, which was marred by rain, was insured with a British company, which 7.05 had to pay a substantial sum.

London, June 17. The suggestion that the British Government should provide export credits to facilitate the building of merchant ships, or the transfer British ships to another flag, has aroused strong opposition from the International Shipping Conference, whose members number about 90 "In Memoriam" silver medal tonnage of the world.

Mr. Bernard Shaw went to the London studio of the B.B.C. recently to give a talk about St. Joan Arc, on the five hundredth anniversary of her martyrdom.

Father Woodlock, the Jesuit priest, preaching at Farm Street Roman Catholic Church, London, protested against the "impudence, almost I might say criminal folly," of the B.B.C. authorities for issuing an invitation to Mr. Bernard Shaw to speak on St. Joan of Arc over the wireless.

Mr. Shaw's Rejoinder. In a rejoinder to the view of Father Woodlock, Mr. Bernard Shaw said: "I imagine from what Father Woodlock says that he agrees with Joan in the position that she took, which caused her to be burned. That, of course, is the Protestant position. If Father Calves' Woodlock, agrees with Joan, then, of course, he is a Protestant, too. "If the attention of the Church | - _ -

WATCHDOG DOPED

transpired.—Reuter.

When the staff of a Wandsworth jewellers' shop arrived for work one day they found the watchdog which is left at large in the shop during the night lying unconscious on the floor.

They found, too that the shop had been ransacked by thieves who had stolen jewellery worth more than £1,000.

The shop is the High Street, Wandsworth, branch of Spikins Dent, Limited, watchmakers and jewellers.

The watchdog was ill, and it is believed he was then suffering from something given to him by the men who planned the raid.

The thieves got on to the roof of the shop by climbing a high wall at the back. Once on the roof they smashed the glass fanlight and cut through two thick iron bars with an oxy-acetylene lamp. Then they fastened a rope to one of the bars and lowered themselves into the shop. The windows were shuttered and nothing would have been seen from the street. The men cleared the window of watches, gold bracelets, gold signet rings, and other things. Then they departed by the way. they came, leaving the rope be-No attempt was made to break open the safe, which contained a large quantity of valuable diamond rings and other jewellery. The watchdog recovered after several hours.

MR. C. R. DAS.

Calcutta Observance of Death Anniversary

Calcutta, June 16. The sixth anniversary of the death of Mr. C. R. Das was observed by Congressmen in Calcutta to-day. Streams of people visited the Kearatala burning ghat in the morning and laid wreaths at the spot, where his remains were cremated. In the afternoon meetings were held all over Calcutta, where speakers dwelt on Mr. Das's life and character. Mr. J. M. Sen Gupta, presiding a one of the meetings, said the outstanding characteristic of Mr. C. R. Das was "his burning love of country." To serve India Mr. Das gave away his all and became bairagi (ascetic). Another trait of his character was that, when he thought a particular policy to be right, he would pursue. it with dynamic zeal and energy, whether it received the approval of "big" people or not.

That explained his founding the Saaraj Party in opposition to Mr. Gandhi.

The people wish for peace, and nothing will ever make me believe that they do not .- M. Briand.

It is all bunkum to talk about the brotherhood of man in general terms until we have realised the brotherhood of man in Britain. Mr. Baldwin.
